

Head of Site & Commissioning Management Ansgar Vierhaus

As project and construction manager, Ansgar is responsible for the smooth, proper and in time execution of the RWE TI projects. He takes over the coordination of all processes within a construction project from the start of construction to acceptance. He acts as an interface to customers, suppliers and authorities. Ansgar is the contact person for all parties involved and at the same time an advisor on all technical issues.

Ansgar has more than 20 years of experience in power plant construction and related project management, especially in plant and building construction. At the time it started with the scheduling of major projects. Today, Ansgar takes over various projects as project and site manager.

Ansgar gained international experience in other European countries, such as Bulgaria, as well as in Pakistan.

His current responsibility includes the coordination of various projects in the field of power plant decommissioning and demolition. Customers benefit from Ansgar's broad experience, expertise and strong team orientation in the development of customized solutions.

1 What gives you most satisfaction in your work?

The opportunity to make a significant contribution to the client's success due to my skills and international expertise.

2 Why did you choose RWE TI?

I can't imagine doing anything else than executing projects. This is only possible with a very good qualified and highly motivated team. That's what my heart is beating for.

3 Which three words best describes you?

Solution-oriented. Communicative. Team-oriented.

4 „Our aim is your success.“ – What it means to me:

My goal is to manage my work with passion. In my projects it is important to create the best possible basis for customer success.
