

Head of CCGT

Henning Joswig

Henning has more than 25 years of professional experience in various functions in the energy industry.

He has successfully demonstrated his leadership and management expertise in numerous gas, nuclear energy and coal projects - most recently in the realisation of the Floating Storage and Regasification Unit (FSRU) terminal in Brunsbüttel.

Previously, Henning was repeatedly involved in various pilot projects in the field of PtL/G, such as the 'greenfuel' project of innogy SE, which successfully demonstrated the implementation of the entire value chain of a renewable energy source (methanol) in Essen in 2017.

Through his time at the RWE Innovation Hub and working with the RWE-team in Silicon Valley, Henning was able to familiarise himself with innovative approaches to problem solving and management decisions.

As Head of CCGT (Combined Cycle Gas Turbine), Henning is looking forward to the future challenges together with his teams in the development, construction and commissioning of gas-fired power plants. Here, he will be able to contribute his extensive wealth of experience in a result-orientated and determined manner.

Holistic project responsibility also includes the management of resources, technology and PMO (project management organisation) for the CCGT area.

1 What gives you most satisfaction in your work?

I am proud and very pleased to be able to make an important contribution to the transformation of the energy system and security of supply with my team through the construction of CCGT plants.

2 Why did you choose RWE TI?

After many different positions in the RWE-Group over more than 25 years, I would now like to contribute my wide-ranging expertise to the development, construction and operation of new, future-oriented gas-fired power plants. I have often worked together with RWE TI on projects and was able to convince myself of RWE TI's expertise. I am therefore delighted to be part of the team and to be able to contribute to RWE's transformation.

3 What three words best describe you?

Problem solver - Organizing ability - Networker

4 "Your challenge is our passion!"

For me, this message means that anyone can solve simple tasks - we will leave complex ones to RWE TI.
